Title:	9 fell ill after eating mushrooms, food poisoning suspected in Kabeerdham district, Chhattisgarh
Action By CSU, IDSP –NCDC	Information communicated to DSU – Kabeerdham, SSU- Chhattisgarh

At least nine people including four kids were taken ill after consuming mushrooms on Sunday night in meals and their condition worsened since then, in Kabeerdham district of Chhattisgarh. The family members have complained of abdomen ache and diarrhoea.

Officials said that police got information on Sunday night that four children of a family and their parents were seriously ill and were suffering from acute pain in abdomen.

The residents of Bhautola village in Kabeerdham, had slept after having dinner and suddenly woke up to abdomen ache and vomiting around 2 am. It was five year old girl who woke up to pain first and before she could be handled, others too fell ill.

As it was late in the night, one of the family members managed to call Dial 112 and by the time police team reached, half of them had fallen unconscious.

All the nine were rushed to hospital in police vehicle and ambulance were also called. In the investigation, it was found that the family members had eaten mushroom in meals which was probably poisonous.

Doctors treating the patients said that it was a case of food poisoning and it will take sometime for them to recover. They were all admitted at district hospital and the condition of children were stated to be critical.

The patients vary between the age of five to 50 years including four children and three women.
