While giving free medicines, the Director also thanked the villagers for extending their support to the team to treat the affected animals. The release stated that the department is prepared to extend services to any outbreak of diseases in animals and requested everyone to come and report to the nearest Veterinary Health Centre for timely intervention by the department qualified staff, rather than, making publicity through other means to control the outbreak of animal diseases.

Meanwhile, in the recent outbreak, the department had to direct the officials to make their own arrangement to go to the affected areas to control the outbreak of the disease, since the State election department did not consider the appeal made by the department for exemption of emergency duty vehicle from election duty.

This was stated in a release issued by Dr. S. Amenla Walling, Deputy Director & Principal Investigator, AICRP-ADMAS, Directorate of AH & VS.
